TAX SYSTEM DRAWS FIRE OF GOVERNOR IN ADDRESS ON FRIDAY

Chief Executive Scores "Reds" and Radicals In Speech Before 300 Xenians at Reformed Church Following Banquet.

Declaring that our tax system is too involved; predicting that the future will result in taxation only for franchises, personal incomes, inheritance and realty, and delivering a stirring indictment of reds, radicals and agitators of industrial, political and social unrest, Governor James M. Cox interested an audience of 300 people at the Reformed church Friday evening.

NO PROGRESS IS MADE ON TREATY IN CONFERENCE

COMPROMISE STILL EVADES PARTY LEADERS IN SESSION SATURDAY.

Both Parties Are Still Uncertain

Republicans Are Divided Into Three Groups With Opposing Ideas.

Washington, Jan. 17.—No progress was made toward a compromise on the peace treaty by the five Democratic and four Republican senators who met today at a round table conference in the office of Senator Lodge.

A general conference between Democrats and Republicans was held with Senator Lodge, Republican leader, and chairman of the foreign relations committee. Numerous senators had propositions for a compromise which they desired to lay before the conference.

Both parties today appeared to be in a very uncertain position. There was little chance of any straight party action. The Republicans are divided into three groups, "the irreconcilables," the "mild reservationists," and the "milder reservationists."

Among the Democrats there are apparently two factions, that which is following the lead of President Wilson and Senator Hitchcock anxious for ratification without changes, and that faction which is leaning toward the policy of Senator Underwood and William Jennings Bryan, who favor compromise upon any terms obtainable.

Thus far no compromise has been made which meets the approval of Senator Lodge but there were hopes that some suggestions which would offer a way out of the difficulty would be born today.

In explaining why he had been able to attend the affair in his honor, the Governor stated that the gentlemen who invited him were artful enough to make the invitation at a week's end, and he welcomed the opportunity of coming to Xenia on Friday in order to be at his home in Dayton, over Sunday.

"I congratulate Xenia on having an aggressive and progressive Chamber of Commerce," began the Governor. "It has a very distinct function and will be helpful in the growth and progress of Xenia. However, it must have sustained labor and interest to keep it going."

"We have lived so long in our geographical isolation that we begin to feel that our institutions were to remain as changeless as the stars. When our vigilance ceases the day of our institutions is approaching its end. So it is with your Chamber of Commerce. I urge upon you the first opportunity, for your helping to make Ohio's part in the World War a brilliant one."

TAX SYSTEM DRAWS

mischievous bent, who have sought to turn industrial controversy into industrial revolution." Here it was that the Governor painted a picture of the homecoming of the 37th Division, and the love and tenderness with which a mother greeted her returned son. "Civilization," he said, "is that something that ties the generations together. The love of the mother for the child. It will stand the waves of Bolshevism. You can no more destroy it in Ohio than you can take the color out of the landscape in Greene county. The Governor of the state is optimistic.

"In Ohio the tax question is the most important now," he said. "Like the poor it is always with us. When we have the tax question settled we shall expect to hear Gabriel sound his trumpet for the millennium will be here." The Governor explained, however, that the state has managed to operate within its income, thanks to the production prison farm, and other institutions in the field of labor.

"Our whole system of taxation, local, state, and federal, is involved," he said. "I predict that one of these days in Ohio there will be only four things that will be taxed—franchises, personal incomes, inheritance and real estate. This will do away with personal returns."

Constitution is Guide.

"The constitution is the balance and the guide," said the Governor in speaking of the unrest of this period. "War shook the earth to its base. Racial emotion was stirred as it never has been before. We found that there was not racial elbow room. The planet is much smaller. Things that did not once concern us. Things in remote parts of the globe may be menacing possibilities. We, as Americans, must help save the civilization of the earth and help destroy any menace of civilization, no matter where it is, on God's foot stool."

"Cardinal Mercier, that great spiritual figure of the world war, denied the power and trifled with the wrath of the Kaiser. If he had lived 100 years ago the influence of his service and his name itself would not have been known beyond Belgium. His influence for good was felt all over the earth."

I wish I could convey how much of the poison of Bolshevism there is in this state," continued Governor Cox. "Mischief mines are swaying aliens, as a mother handles a child. These people come from overseas and bring with them their own individual rules of conduct. We must regard them as being revolutionary. We have absorbed the best of every racial line and have that great composite of the American citizen."

Immigrant a Citizen

"After the immigrant is here awhile he should become a citizen," said the Governor. "It is time to separate the sheep from the goats. If we find one drop of alien poison then Uncle Sam must go in the ship business. Public opinion is a great factor in molding the minds, but aliens are not influenced by public opinion, because they do not speak the language. Many are not Americanized, because many capitalists believe they would absorb American standards as to wages. These capitalists have now seen the error of their ways, however. We must know that they are to be American in fact as well as in name. When we know that, the future holds nothing that will give us any apprehension."

In the course of his remarks Governor Cox paid a tribute to Judge C. H. Kyle of this city, saying that the Chief Justice had said that when he had a particularly hard case, he always relied upon the local jurist to try it.

MURDER CASE HAS

CLOUDING ISSUE

Cedarville people celebrated the official demise of John Barleycorn Friday, when programs were rendered in the opera house, afternoon and evening.

Three addresses were given in the afternoon. Mrs. J. P. White spoke on "Temperance and Missions," Mrs. W. R. McChesney gave "Questions and Answers Relative to the National Prohibition Act," and Miss Mary Ervin, national secretary of the Loyall Temperance Legion, talked on "Safeguarding the Future."

Deputy Probate Judge S. C. Wright presided at the evening program, which was heard by several hundred persons.

President W. R. McChesney of Cedarville college, gave a powerful address, "The Constitution, Its Ideals and Principles." This talk was followed by a very interesting and instructive talk by Dr. J. P. White on the Eighteenth Amendment and How It Was Adopted. "Law Enforcement," was the subject of a fine address by Rev. J. P. Harriman, and the Rev. S. R. McElroy made the final speech on the program, an able discourse on "World Prohibition and World Evangelism."

Music was rendered by a children's chorus and by the college quartette.

LET CONTRACT FOR XENIAS NEW WATER SUPPLY

FUNDS WILL BE AVAILABLE BY BELIEF.

City Manager Kenyon Riddle and City Solicitor J. A. Finney, as instructed by the City Commission at the last regular meeting, entered into a contract with Phillip Burgess, consulting engineer, for the preliminary work connected with establishing a new water supply for Xenia, Friday.

Mr. Burgess, who was consulting hydraulic engineer employed by the city before the purchase of the plant from the Xenia Water Company, is done here. He will start to work immediately in planning the new supply by that time Mr. Burgess will have the engineering completed so that the contract can be let and work started immediately to develop the new supply.

It is planned to supplant the Springfield pipe pumping station first if it is said by City Manager Riddle, as the water furnished from this source is more impure and the supply is not so adequate as that of the Cincinnati pipe pumping station.

The latter station will be kept in use until the Springfield pipe station is dismantled and sold after which it will be discontinued and all the water supplied by the new system.

It is expected to have the new supply in operation by fall.

Insurance.

Of the three kinds of insurance, marine is probably the oldest. The object of this insurance content is to indemnify against loss of property in the course of navigation. A ship, her cargo, and the ship's earnings are insured against fire and the many perils of the voyage. Marine insurance was practised by the Venetians in the fifteenth century. In England it was in active operation in the sixteenth century.

Declare places where liquor is sold in violation of law to be common nuisances abatable as such.

Permit manufacture of alcoholic liquors for sacramental and medicinal uses, under restrictions.

Permit manufacture of alcohol for industrial and scientific uses.

Permit possession of liquor in home if purchased before prohibition became effective.

unshieft bent, who have sought to turn industrial controversy into industrial revolution." Here it was that the Governor painted a picture of the homecoming of the 37th Division, and the love and tenderness with which a mother greeted her returned son. "Civilization," he said, "is that something that ties the generations together. The love of the mother for the child. It will stand the waves of Bolshevism. You can no more destroy it in Ohio than you can take the color out of the landscape in Greene county. They are Angelo, aged 26, Conteho, aged 10, and Dominick, aged 22. Dr. John Higgleman, medical examiner was notified today that a serum has been discovered at Illinois University which will counteract poison from bad olives. He asked that some of it be rushed here by airplane if necessary to save the lives of the remaining two members of the family.

"In Ohio the tax question is the most important now," he said. "Like the poor it is always with us. When we have the tax question settled we shall expect to hear Gabriel sound his trumpet for the millennium will be here." The Governor explained, however, that the state has managed to operate within its income, thanks to the production prison farm, and other institutions in the field of labor.

"Our whole system of taxation, local, state, and federal, is involved," he said. "I predict that one of these days in Ohio there will be only four things that will be taxed—franchises, personal incomes, inheritance and real estate. This will do away with personal returns."

Constitution is Guide.

"The constitution is the balance and the guide," said the Governor in speaking of the arrest of this period. "War shook the earth to its base. Racial emotion was stirred as it never has been before. We found that there was not racial elbow room. The planet is much smaller. Things that did not once concern us. Things in remote parts of the globe may be menacing possibilities. We, as Americans, must help save the civilization of the earth and help destroy any menace of civilization, no matter where it is, on God's foot stool."

"Cardinal Mercier, that great spiritual figure of the world war, defined the power and trifled with the wrath of the Kaiser. If he had lived 100 years ago the influence of his service and his name itself would not have been known beyond Belgium. His influence for good was felt all over the earth."

"I wish I could convey how much of the poison of Bolshevism there is in this state," continued Governor Cox. "Mischief nunes are swaying aliens, as a mother handles a child. These people come from overseas and bring with them their own individual rules of conduct. We must regard them as being revolutionary. We have absorbed the best of every racial line and have that great composite of the American citizen."

Immigrant a Citizen

"After the immigrant is here awhile he should become a citizen," said the Governor. "It is time to separate the sheep from the goats. If we find one drop of alien poison then Uncle Sam must go in the ship business. Public opinion is a great factor in molding the minds, but aliens are not influenced by public opinion, because they do not speak the language. Many are not Americanized, because many capitalists believe they would absorb American standards as to wages. These capitalists have now seen the error of their ways, however. We must know that they are to be American in fact as well as in name. When we know that, the future holds nothing that will give us any apprehension."

In the course of his remarks Governor Cox paid a tribute to Judge C. H. Kyle of this city, saying that the Chief Justice had said that when he had a particularly hard case, he always relied upon the local jurist to try it.

MURDER CASE HAS NEW DEVELOPMENT CLOUDING ISSUE

Cedarville people celebrated the official demise of John Barleycorn Friday, when programs were rendered in the opera house, afternoon and evening.

Three addresses were given in the afternoon. Mrs. J. P. White spoke on "Temperance and Missions." Mrs. W. R. McChesney gave "Questions and Answers Relative to the National Prohibition Act," and Miss Mary Ervin, national secretary of the Loyalty Temperance Legion, talked on "Safeguarding the Future."

Deputy Probate Judge S. C. Wright presided at the evening program, which was heard by several hundred persons.

President W. R. McChesney of Cedarville college, gave a powerful address, "The Constitution, Its Ideals and Principles." This talk was followed by a very interesting and instructive talk by Dr. J. P. White on "The Eighteenth Amendment, and How It Was Adopted." "Law Enforcement," was the subject of a fine address by Rev. J. P. Harriman, and the Rev. S. R. McElhenny made the final speech on "World Prohibition and World Evangelism."

Music was rendered by a children's chorus and by the college quartette.

THE WOMAN WHO LOVED--AND EARNED

By Jane Phelps.

A Modern Story of Home and Business.

A "FRANK TALK THAT WASN'T FRANK"

CHAPTER 28

To a woman who has loved strongly, loving is almost a necessity. And from the very first I had loved Robert strongly, but with a certain reserve that I could not overcome. Had I married at 20 instead of 25, I would probably have been more outspoken in my feeling for him, as well as in regard to other things—our manner of living, etc.

It was hard for me to broach the subject of my work. Beginning with Mary Ryan, everyone had made me feel I was in the wrong, yet I myself believed I was doing everything for the best—not entirely on my own account either but because of Robert.

"Robert, do you feel like I should give up my position?" I asked, "and that we should try to live on what you can earn."

I was looking straight at him as I spoke and there came into his eyes a peculiar gleam—just for a moment. But before I had finished it was gone, and his face wore the same quiet expression to which I was fast becoming accustomed, altho it was so different from the one he wore when we were married.

Then he looked happy, carefree, and was always laughing and joking. Now he did not do so, says occasionally—he surely had changed, and he made me anxious.

"What do you think about it?" His question annoyed me. He, everyone, knew what I thought.

"That's a Yankee trick, answering by asking a question yourself. I want to know what you think."

"I want you to be happy, Gerry. You know how little I earn. Unless you could be happy living as we would have to live I would far rather you went on at the shop, and so having what you want."

"There! I knew that was how you felt about it. But your aunt was so sure you would be tempted to do wrong because you had no home that I had almost determined to give up my position so that I could wash dishes and cook for you in some cheap place."

He had flushed when I spoke of temptation, but I had not given it a thought beyond feeling he was annoyed that his aunt thought him so little worthy of trust. I loved him so genuinely, and my time and mind were so engaged with my work when not with him, that I had no time for doubt, save when just a shadow of one would creep in when he had been with Marion Hovey.

"Aunt seemed to have very little confidence in me," he said after a moment.

"Oh, I don't think she meant just you, when she talked. She seems to think all men rather weak, and that it is the wife's duty to see they are not led into temptation. She didn't say a word about a wife having any temptations."

"I suppose she knew you were too busy earning our living."

The bitterness in Robert's voice penetrated even my stupidity as regarding money matters.

"Why, Robert Meredith! Aren't you ashamed to talk like that? You know that just as soon as you get a larger salary I shall be glad to play lady, and that it is only fair that until you do we use what I earn for our living. Have I ever said one word about earning more than you do?"

"No," the flush on his face had deepened, "but you do. Your not saying anything doesn't alter the fact. You are paying aunt's expenses too. And?"

She doesn't know that unless you have told her."

"No, and I am too much of a coward to tell her. It is too humiliating. Yet I allow my self to be humiliated not only in that, but in many other ways. It's too bad you married me, Gerry. I thought I was going to make good or I wouldn't have asked you."

"Well, Robert, I don't think it too bad I married you. You're the only man I ever wanted to marry. If I am satisfied, you shouldn't kick. That is unless you—regret marrying me."

"I wanted to make you happy—but—"

"You do when you are yourself and don't fuss about foolish things. Your firm is sure to advance you soon. If not, you can go with someone else. I was positive it was the fact that others had been advanced and their salaries raised that bothered Robert; not that I worked, or that we lived in a boarding house.

TOMORROW—Gerry Stays Home with Aunt Felicia.

SAYS PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL MUST GO; MENACE TO GROWTH

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

New York, Jan. 16.—Professional football must go.

This was the edict of the National Collegiate Athletic Association at its winter meeting here recently.

To curb what was looked upon as a menace to the growth of football, as a national sport university legislation was urged to rescind the letter of any college football man who participates in the professional game after he finishes his course.

The western conference fired the first gun in the campaign by adopting this defense.

Other universities and groups no doubt will follow in the same trail but not all of them.

Many of the western and southern officials do not fear the professional as a cloud, that threatens the life of the gridiron pastime.

Among them is Coach Livingston, who has a habit of turning out championship elevens in the Ohio conference for Denison university.

"Colleges would not think of rescinding the diploma of a graduate who was guilty of some civil breach. Why then should a football player be deprived of an earned letter for committing an alleged sport of mercenaries?" he said during the recent meeting.

Some of the delegates from the middlewest deny that professional football is a disgrace.

They also argue that similar legislation should be enacted against baseball players who turn their talents to professional games and against salaried coaches in the colleges who employ their knowledge to mercenary ends.

Glenn Warner, football boss of Pittsburgh, has this to say:

"Football should not be encouraged as a professional sport because it is not adapted to it. Football requires strict supervision to keep it out one

THE WOMAN WHO LOVED—AND EARNED

By Jane Phelps.

A Modern Story of Home and Business.

A "FRANK TALK THAT WASN'T FRANK"

CHAPTER 28

To a woman who has loved strongly, loving is almost a necessity. And from the very first I had loved Robert strongly, but with a certain reserve that I could not overcome. Had I married at 20 instead of 25, I would probably have been more outspoken in my feeling for him, as well as in regard to other things our manner of living, etc.

It was hard for me to broach the subject of my work. Beginning with Mary Ryan, everyone had made me feel I was in the wrong, yet I myself believed I was doing everything for the best—not entirely on my own account either but because of Robert.

"Robert, do you feel like I should give up my position?" I asked, "and that we should try to live on what you can earn."

I was looking straight at him as I spoke and there came into his eyes a peculiar gleam—just for a moment. But before I had finished it was gone, and his face wore the same quiet expression to which I was fast becoming accustomed, although it was so different from the one he wore when we were married.

Then he looked happy, carefree, and was always laughing and joking. Now he did not do so, save occasionally—he surely had changed, and he made me anxious.

"What do you think about it?" His question annoyed me. He, everyone, knew what I thought.

"That's a Yankee trick, answering by asking a question yourself. I want to know what you think."

"I want you to be happy, Gerry. You know how little I earn. Unless you could be happy living as we would have to live I would far rather you went on at the shop, and so having what you want."

"There! I knew that was how you felt about it. But your aunt was so sure you would be tempted to do wrong because you had no home that I had almost determined to give up my position so that I could wash dishes and cook for you in some cheap place."

He had flushed when I spoke of temptation, but I had not given it a thought beyond feeling he was annoyed that his aunt thought him so little worthy of trust. I loved him so genuinely, and my time and mind were so engaged with my work when not with him, that I had no time for doubt, save when just a shadow of one would creep in when he had been with Marion Hovey.

"Aunt seemed to have very little confidence in me," he said after a moment.

"Oh, I don't think she meant just you, when she talked. She seems to think all men rather weak, and that it is the wife's duty to see they are not led into temptation. She didn't say a word about a wife having any temptations."

"I suppose she knew you were too busy earning our living."

The bitterness in Robert's voice penetrated even my stupidity as regarding money matters.

"Why, Robert Meredith! Aren't you ashamed to talk like that? You know that just as soon as you get a larger salary I shall be glad to play lady, and that it is only fair that until you do we use what I earn for our living. Have I ever said one word about earning more than you do?"

"No," the flush on his face had deepened, "but you do. Your not saying anything doesn't alter the fact. You are paying aunt's expenses too. And"—

She doesn't know that unless you have told her."

"No, and I am too much of a coward to tell her. It is too humiliating. Yet I allow my self to be humiliated not only in that, but in many other ways. It's too bad you married me, Gerry. I thought I was going to make good or I wouldn't have asked you."

"Well, Robert, I don't think it too bad I married you. You're the only man I ever wanted to marry. If I am satisfied, you shouldn't kick. That is unless you—regret marrying me."

"I wanted to make you happy—but—"

"You do when you are yourself and don't fuss about foolish things. Your firm is sure to advance you soon. If not, you can go with someone else. I was positive it was the fact that others had been advanced and their salaries raised that bothered Robert; not that I worked, or that we lived in a boarding house.

SAYS PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL MUST GO; MENACE TO GROWTH

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

New York, Jan. 16.—Professional football must go.

This was the edict of the National Collegiate Athletic Association at its winter meeting here recently.

To curb what was looked upon as a menace to the growth of football, as a national sport university legislation was urged to rescind the letter of any college football man who participates in the professional game after he finishes his course.

The western conference fired the first gun in the campaign by adopting this defense.

Other universities and groups no doubt will follow in the same trail but not all of them.

Many of the western and southern officials do not fear the professional as a cloud, that threatens the life of the gridiron pastime.

Among them is Coach Livingston, who has a habit of turning out championship elevens in the Ohio conference for Denison university.

"Colleges would not think of rescinding the diploma of a graduate who was guilty of some civil breach. Why then should a football player be deprived of an earned letter for committing an alleged sport of fence?" he said during the recent meeting.

Some of the delegates from the middlewest deny that professional football is a disgrace.

They also argue that similar legislation should be enacted against the baseball players who turn their talents to professional games and against salaried coaches in the colleges who employ their knowledge to mercenary ends.

Glenn Warner, football boss of Pittsburgh, has this to say:

"Football should not be encouraged as a professional sport because it is not adapted to it. Football requires strict supervision to keep down abuses, needs skill, well-trained players and pure spirit. Professional football would have a harder time embodying all those essentials than a college team."

Soccer is an ideal sport for professional players and I would not be surprised to see it more generally approved when it is introduced to the strongholds of the professional Rugby game."

THE SIXTEENTH DAY OF JANUARY, 1920.

Many favors which God gives us ravel out for want of hemming, through our unthankfulness. It was old Isaac Walton who said: "God has two dwellings, one in heaven and the other in a thankful heart." And this week, not in one heart but in millions of hearts, for lo have we not, as a nation, come to the 16th day of January in the good year 1920.

Well, well, what of it? Why much, much, for is not that the day of the death of poor old John Barleycorn? Long, long has been his life, and as "death with the sword" has been the record of his reign. As he bids us farewell, we say "good-bye, you old scoundrel, we'd rather your room than your company." January 16th—it ought to be another national thanksgiving day.

By whom? By the whole nation—men, women and children. By the man who does not drink, because his taxes are to be lighter. By the man who does drink, because the opportunity for him to make a fool and a nuisance of himself are removed—because he is to become a respectable man instead of a drunkard—because he is going to spend his money for his wife and children, instead of for drink.

And the heartiest of all the thanksgiving will be by the drunkard's wife, who thought she was marrying a man, but alas found only a two legged whiskey-tub, to abuse her and make life intollerable. And the children whom God had given the drunkard, how they will sing paens of thanksgiving to the 16th of January, 1920, which gave them a sober father, instead of a beer-tub.

The records of numerous penitentiaries have shown that nine-tenths of the inmates have come there from the effects, directly or indirectly, of intemperance. Think of the burden of taxes imposed upon the sober part of the community for the support of poor-houses, jails, police, hospitals and penitentiaries by this hydra-headed octopus, and do you wonder that common sense has driven it from the land.

Think of the heart-broken mothers who have had to witness their fair-haired boys come to be slobbering idiots. Is there anywhere in life any others to whom our souls go out in more pity? It is enough to melt the heart of any but the soulless grog seller.

We may not have come to the glad day when all intemperance has been banished from the land, but if we have come to the one when the open saloon shall no longer tempt the young to destruction, we have come to one worthy our great thanksgiving.

So, all hail, January 16th, 1920. We take off our cap to thee, as to a conquering hero. And we give great praise to all who helped in the great work under the direction of the magnificent Anti-Saloon League.

THE SOUNDEST INDUSTRIAL POLICY.

By John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

I believe that the ultimate object of all activities in a republic should be the development of the manhood of its citizens; that such manhood can be developed to the fullest degree only under conditions of freedom for the individual, and that industrial enterprises can and should be conducted in accordance with these principles. I believe that a prime consideration in the carrying on of industry should be the well-being of the men and women engaged in it, and that the soundest industrial policy is that which has constantly in mind the welfare of the employees as well as the making of profits, and which, when the necessity arises, subordinates profits to welfare. If, with the responsibilities I have had and the opportunities given me, I am able to contribute toward promoting the well-being of my fellow men, through the lessening of injustice and the alleviation of human suffering, I shall feel that it has been possible to realize the highest purpose of my life.

SOME DOGS OF OLD.

In the Cornhill Magazine Percy Stevenson writes of the affection of Sir Walter Scott for his dogs. An author surely is known not merely by the books he writes but by the company he keeps among the "brute creation." Sir Walter's affection for dogs, this writer tells us, "amounted almost to a passion." Byron loved dogs because they were unlike men, Mr. Stevenson declares, but Scott cared for them for their own sweet selves. Is it too much to assert that in return for his devotion to them the dogs of whom Scott wrote will help to assure the immortality of his writings?

No final estimate of a man in his community can be made till we are told what children and the dogs thought about him. The only trouble is that dogs are likely to be too fondly indulgent. They will follow the tramp as soon as the millionaire, the commoner as readily as royalty. They look into a man's eyes, not into his pockets. If they find kindness in his aspect they do not care about his purse. They will starve and suffer with him and adventure anywhere. When he fails they have no condemnation. Their love once placed is unchanging. So that is not to be wondered at that some who are fond of dogs with a Scott-like fondness insist that dogs have souls and announce that they do not wish to go to Heaven unless they shall find their dogs waiting for them there. It is possible to feel quite as badly over the death of a dog as over the death of a person.

LLOYD GEORGE WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR LIFT OF RUSSIAN BLOCKADE

Paris, Jan. 17.—The decision to virtually lift the blockade of soviet Russia, was initiated by Premier Lloyd George, of Great Britain, according to the Matin today.

According to the Figaro, Premier Lloyd George believes that the Bolshevik movement will begin to die the day that the Russian peasants are again able to clothe and feed themselves.

This paper asserted the British were afraid of a Bolshevik advance eastward and was opposed to establishing a barrier but found a way out by opening a valve westward.

FORBIDDEN PATH

By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

"Now what does that ever mean?" Miss Anice Gordon, spinster, gave a sniff of indignation and peered sharply at a piece of board supported by chains covering an open gateway. The sign read: "No Trespassing Allowed."

Her younger sister, Millie, paled.

"Can't you answer?" demanded Anice irritably.

"I can only see that the path across to the main road has been closed to the public," spoke Millie in a subdued tone.

"The public!" snapped Anice.

"Fudge! We are the only 'public' who ever cross this way. Heretofore, as it saved us going around half a mile, we used it. We had been invited—welcome, in fact, to do so. Now it is closed as a forbidden path. Why! I take it as a deliberate insult on the part of Mr. Morton Chester."

"Oh, don't say that, sister," quavered Millie pleadingly. "There is some mistake—some reason."

"Well, I shall never recognize Mr. Chester until I know what it is," snapped Anice testily, and flounced away.

Millie waded slowly back to their little vine-embowered cottage. Hers had been a humdrum, uneventful life until six months previous, when Morton Chester bought his present estate.

He was four years the senior of Millie and it was rumored had made a business success.

It was also learned that he had only one relative in the world, a younger step-brother, whom he always spoke of with loving tenderness.

Mr. Chester proved to be a good neighbor. His only servants were a housekeeper and a cook, and one day he invited the sisters to a formal dinner, later took tea with them, and it grew to be so that he would drop in on them for a chat, or invite them over to Fairview to advise him as to some landscape gardening.

Anice was an exacting chaperon, but Millie and he nurtured a warm mutual companionship that both prized.

For about a month, however, the Gordons had barely seen Mr. Chester. Abruptly he seemed to evade them. He called no more at the cottage, and Millie grew grave and puzzled and Anice quite offended. The latter hinted at mystery when there arrived a dark, sinister appearing man. Now Millie gave an hour's serious thought to the stranger, seeking to analyze the alteration in the behavior of their neighbor, and said to her sister later:

"Anice, I fear that Mr. Chester is in some deep trouble.

"That is not our affair," replied Anice crossly. "He has seen fit to ignore us and I have no further interest in him."

"But I have, sister dear," began Millie, flushing visibly.

"Perhaps too much," commented Anice significantly.

"I do not forget how kind and considerate he has been to us," proceeded Millie.

"I am satisfied that Mr. Chester is in difficulty and has been ever since that man, Walters, came to Fairview. Mr. Chester acts as if he is afraid of him. He looks pale and worried and I have seen Walters meet a vicious looking fellow at the stock shelter shed several times, always at dusk, and they suggest a couple of plotters."

It was two evenings later when Millie, wandering sadly past the western confines of Fairview, noticed a light at the shelter shed. An hour later, pale and agitated, she hastened homeward to seek her sister at once.

"Anice," she said, "I have overheard that man, Walters, and his sinister friend discussing Mr. Chester. He is the center of an infamous scheme of extortion. It seems that his step-brother is in South America on a secret business mission, and they have convinced Mr. Chester that he went there to escape prosecution for an embezzlement he committed, but which his former employers have not yet discovered. Walters threatens to expose him unless Mr. Chester bribes him liberally. They have so deftly worked on the fears of Mr. Chester that he hides himself in fancied disgrace from all his friends. I have learned enough to give names and addresses, whereby Mr. Chester can easily be assured of the innocence of his step-brother and the guilt of these human harpies. Why! where are you going?" for Anice had arisen with set, resolute face.

"I am going to see Mr. Chester, and I am going by the short cut," came the grim answer.

Mr. Chester did not return with Anice, but there was an expectant, triumphant look on her face as she said: "Mr. Chester will be here within an hour, Millie. He insisted on seeing you to thank you for relieving him from a domination that has caused him untold misery."

"Before I left the house," announced Mr. Chester, when he arrived, "I sent Walters on his way with a promise to send him to the penitentiary if I ever saw his face again. On my way here, I smashed that 'No Trespassing' sign to splinters, Millie. The forbidden path is forevermore a public highway and you can enter Fairview as freely as you can my heart, which has been yours since the day I first met you. Speak, dearest! Is it worthy as an abiding place for your love?" and Millie hid her blushing happy face on Anice's shoulder, and Morton Chester had his answer.

"I am going to see Mr. Chester, and I am going by the short cut," came the grim answer.

THE SOUNDEST INDUSTRIAL POLICY.

By John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

I believe that the ultimate object of all activities in a republic should be the development of the manhood of its citizens; that such manhood can be developed to the fullest degree only under conditions of freedom for the individual, and that industrial enterprises can and should be conducted in accordance with these principles. I believe that a prime consideration in the carrying on of industry should be the well-being of the men and women engaged in it, and that the soundest industrial policy is that which has constantly in mind the welfare of the employees as well as the making of profits, and which, when the necessity arises, subordinates profits to welfare. If, with the responsibilities I have and the opportunities given me, I am able to contribute toward promoting the well-being of my fellow men, through the lessening of injustice and the alleviation of human suffering, I shall feel that it has been possible to realize the highest purpose of my life.

SOME DOGS OF OLD.

In the Cornhill Magazine Percy Stevenson writes of the affection of Sir Walter Scott for his dogs. An author surely is known not merely by the books he writes but by the company he keeps among the "brute creation." Sir Walter's affection for dogs, this writer tells us, "amounted almost to a passion." Byron loved dogs because they were unlike men, Mr. Stevenson declares, but Scott cared for them for their own sweet selves. Is it too much to assert that in return for his devotion to them the dogs of whom Scott wrote will help to assure the immortality of his writings?

No final estimate of a man in his community can be made till we are told what children and the dogs thought about him. The only trouble is that dogs are likely to be too fondly indulgent. They will follow the tramp as soon as the millionaire, the commoner as readily as royalty. They look into a man's eyes, not into his pockets. If they find kindness in his aspect they do not care about his purse. They will starve and suffer with him and adventure anywhere. When he fails they have no condemnation. Their love once placed is unchanging. So that is not to be wondered at that some who are fond of dogs with a Scott-like fondness insist that dogs have souls and announce that they do not wish to go to Heaven unless they shall find their dogs waiting for them there. It is possible to feel quite as badly over the death of a dog as over the death of a person.

LLOYD GEORGE WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR LIFT OF RUSSIAN BLOCKADE

Paris, Jan. 17.—The decision to virtually lift the blockade of soviet Russia, was initiated by Premier Lloyd George, of Great Britain, according to the Matin today.

According to the Figaro, Premier Lloyd George believes that the Bolshevik movement will begin to die the day that the Russian peasants are again able to clothe and feed themselves.

This paper asserted the British were afraid of a Bolshevik advance eastward and was opposed to establishing a barrier but found a way out by opening a valve westward.

FORBIDDEN PATH

By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

"Now what does that ever mean?" Miss Anice Gordon, spinster, gave a sniff of indignation and peered sharply at a piece of board supported by chains covering an open gateway. The sign read: "No Trespassing Allowed."

Her younger sister, Millie, paled. "Can't you answer?" demanded Anice irritably.

"I can only see that the path across to the main road has been closed to the public," spoke Millie in a subdued tone.

"The public!" snapped Anice. "Fudge! We are the only 'public' who ever cross this way. Heretofore, as it saved us going around half a mile, we used it. We had been invited—welcome, in fact, to do so. Now it is closed as a forbidden path. Why? I take it as a deliberate insult on the part of Mr. Morton Chester."

"Oh, don't say that, sister," quavered Millie pleadingly. "There is some mistake—some reason."

"Well, I shall never recognize Mr. Chester until I know what it is," snapped Anice testily, and flounced away.

Millie waded slowly back to their little vine-embowered cottage. Hers had been a humdrum, uneventful life until six months previous, when Morton Chester bought his present estate. He was four years the senior of Millie and it was rumored had made a business success. It was also learned that he had only one relative in the world, a younger step-brother, whom he always spoke of with loving tenderness. Mr. Chester proved to be a good neighbor. His only servants were a housekeeper and a cook, and one day he invited the sisters to a formal dinner, later took tea with them, and it grew to be so that he would drop in on them for a chat, or invite them over to Fairview to advise him as to some landscape gardening. Anice was an exacting chaperon, but Millie and he nurtured a warm mutual companionship that both prized. For about a month, however, the Gordons had barely seen Mr. Chester. Abruptly he seemed to evade them. He called no more at the cottage, and Millie grew grave and puzzled and Anice quite offended. The latter hinted at mystery when there arrived a dark, sinister appearing man. Now Millie gave an hour's serious thought to the stranger, seeking to analyze the alteration in the behavior of their neighbor, and said to her sister later:

"Anice, I fear that Mr. Chester is in some deep trouble. That is not our affair," replied Anice crossly. "He has seen fit to ignore us and I have no further interest in him."

"But I have, sister dear," began Millie, flushing visibly.

"Perhaps too much," commented Anice significantly.

"I do not forget how kind and considerate he has been to us," proceeded Millie. "I am satisfied that Mr. Chester is in difficulty and has been ever since that man, Walters, came to Fairview. Mr. Chester acts as if he is afraid of him. He looks pale and worried, and I have seen Walters meet a vicious looking fellow at the stock shelter several times, always at dusk, and they suggest a couple of plotters."

It was two evenings later when Millie, wandering sadly past the western confines of Fairview, noticed a light at the shelter shed. An hour later, and agitated, she hastened homeward to seek her sister at once.

"Anice," she said, "I have overheard that man Walters and his sinister friend discussing Mr. Chester. He is the center of an infamous scheme of extortion. It seems that his step-brother is in South America on a secret business mission, and they have convinced Mr. Chester that he went there to escape prosecution for an embezzlement he committed, but which his former employers have not yet discovered. Walters threatens to expose him unless Mr. Chester bribes him liberally. They have so deftly worked on the fears of Mr. Chester that he hides himself in fancied disgrace from all his friends. I have learned enough to give names and addresses, whereby Mr. Chester can easily be assured of the innocence of his step-brother and the guilt of these human harpies. Why! where are you going," for Anice had arisen with set, resolute face.

"I am going to see Mr. Chester, and I am going by the short cut," came the grim answer.

Mr. Chester did not return with Anice, but there was an expectant, triumphant look on her face as she said: "Mr. Chester will be here within an hour, Millie. He insisted on seeing you to thank you for relieving him from a domination that has caused him untold misery."

"Before I left the house," announced Mr. Chester, when he arrived, "I sent Walters on his way with a promise to send him to the penitentiary if I ever saw his face again. On my way here, I smashed that 'No Trespassing' sign to splinters, Millie. The forbidden path is forevermore a public highway and you can enter Fairview as freely as you can my heart, which has been yours since the day I first met you. Speak, dearest! Is it worth as an abiding place for your love?" and Millie hid her blushing happy face on Anice's shoulder, and Morton Chester had his answer.

WASHINGTON NOSES OUT CENTRAL HIGH IN CLOSE GAME FRIDAY

The Central high five went down defeat at the hands of Washington Friday night in what was probably the hardest fought and most sensational game ever staged on a local floor. The final score was 14 to 13 and it clearly indicates how evenly the two teams were matched.

The locals who had an off night on locating the basket were kept in the running in the first half only by the foul shooting of LeSourd and the half ended with the score 11-7 favoring the visitors.

Coach Faires' charges came back strong the second period and scored twice as many points as did their opponents but they fell a trifle short of victory. Both teams played mainly on the defensive in this half.

With nine minutes remaining to play the score stood a tie 13-13 and for eight breathless minutes each team strived to score what would probably be the deciding point.

With but a minute of play remaining the local team was penalized for a double dribble and Geiger sent the ball spinning through the net for the point that gave his team the game.

The entire Central team played well but LeSourd was the chief scorer, making all but two of his team's points as well as being in all the floor work.

Reif was the big noise for Washington both in the scoring and pass-work while Wilson and Geiger also put up good games.

WINNER MAY BE DEFENDANT IN SUIT

New York, Jan. 16.—Steps toward suing Louis Krohnberg, a wealthy clothing manufacturer, for $1,650,000, or five times the amount he is credited with having won at "stud poker" were taken today by Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Charities.

The action will be brought under a statute which provides that persons charged with the care of the poor may bring suits for the benefit of charity against persons who have won in games of chance to recover five times the sum of their winnings.

This action was taken after publication of reports that poker for enormously high stakes was being played by men prominent in the Broadway theatrical district.

"But I have, sister dear," began Millie, flushing visibly.

"Perhaps too much," commented Anice significantly.

"I do not forget how kind and considerate he has been to us," proceeded Millie. "I am satisfied that Mr. Chester is in difficulty and has been ever since that man, Walters, came to Fairview. HEALTH BY BIO-FEREN

"I feel I owe you people a world of gratitude for the benefit I have received in using your wonderful remedy—Bio-feren Tablets, which have completely restored me to normal conditions," says Joseph E. Webb of Muncie, Indiana.

Bio-feren is without doubt the grandest and quickest remedy for nervous, run down, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through the druggists and is not at all expensive.

Take two after each meal and one at bed time, and after seven days take one after each meal and one at bed time until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if you are not in better health—if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen minded, yes, twice as much as you did before, the druggist who sold you the tablets will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand, or can easily get it for you.

Seven a day for seven days—Wonderful results.

FIFTY ALLEGED REDS ARE FREED ON BAIL

New York, Jan. 17.—Forty-two men and eight women, arrested in recent raids on extremists were released from Ellis Island on bail today, making a total of 50 freed since Federal Judge Knox decided Wednesday that immediate bail must be given whether or not the radicals had answered questions of immigration inspectors as to belief in the use of violence to overthrow the government.

Liberty bonds deposited on the island and totaled $68,000, representing $10,000 bail in the case of Gregory Wentworth, "chief of staff" for Soviet Ambassador Martens and $1,000 each in the other cases.

So much of the time of officials on the island was taken up today by approval of bonds and signing of bail documents that but little progress was made in the examination of almost 500 others held in deportation proceedings.

SECOND STRING TEAM DEFEATS BOWERSVILLE

The Central high second string players defeated Bowersville in a preliminary game by a score of 19 to 14. The game was fast, the local team taking the lead at the start. The score at the end of the first half was 8-6.

In the second half the game was even faster and on several occasions the slender lead on the second team was threatened.

Merriweather and Ream were the best performers for Bowersville.

SECOND STRING TEAM DEFEATS BOWERSVILLE

The Central high second string players defeated Bowersville in a preliminary by a score of 19 to 14. The game was fast, the local team taking the lead at the start. The score at the end of the first half was 8-6.

In the second half the game was even faster and on several occasions the slender lead on the second team was threatened.

Merriweather and Ream were the best performers for Bowersville.

TELLS OHIO FARMERS LONE ROBBER IS FOILED BY WIT OF BANK CLERKS

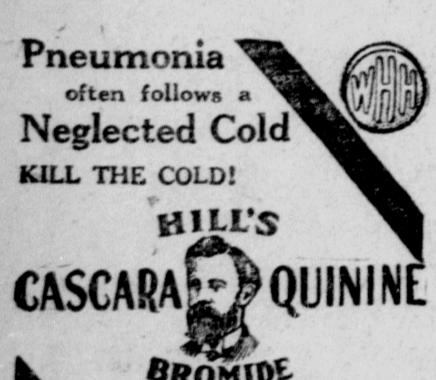

Columbus, O., Jan. 16.—In the belief that much of the poor telephone service among rural subscribers is due to ignorance as to how to use the telephone, Prof. C. A. Wright of the department of electrical engineering at Ohio State University is sending a bulletin broadcast throughout the state.

The paper, "Care of the Farmhouse Telephone," incorporates the following instructions: Keep the phone clean inside and outside, for dust and moisture permits leakage of current and makes conversation less clear. Don't remove the mouthpiece from the transmitter, for it is carefully adjusted to feed sound waves most effectively. Don't leave the receiver off the hook, as it ruins dry batteries. Don't jar or pound the house if it doesn't operate satisfactorily. This may break some delicate parts of the instrument and make the trouble worse.

"Don't force the turning crank if it doesn't turn easily. It is probably due to a ground on the line and forcing the crank may injure the generator. It will not be impossible to talk in wet weather if the line is insulated with glass insulators and kept clear of the ground and of branches."

Umbrellas.

Umbrellas should be washed occasionally. Stand them open, in a bathtub, scrub them with a small hand scrub brush and rinse with a bath spray.

Low Wages in Colombia.
Wages of the native washers and placer miners in the Tiquia region in Colombia average from 25 cents to $1 per day. The earnings of the native miners depend on whether the ground is worked before or after a flood, which causes natural riffles to form in bars along the stream.

TELLS OHIO FARMERS LONE ROBBER IS FOILED BY WIT OF BANK CLERKS

ATTEMPT TO OBTAIN $5,000 MEETS WITH GUN SHOTS.

New York, Jan. 17.—A lone bandit, suffering from the effects of drugs, according to police, fought a losing revolver battle with bank tellers today in an unsuccessful attempt to rob the Manhattan Savings Institution, Broadway and Bleeker street, of $5,000.

Years of "coaching" of the employees on methods of foiling bandits prevented the robber succeeding in his attempt.

The smoke from 20 revolver shots all of which went wild, had not cleared away before the robber, covering and panting, was under arrest. He gave the name of James Stratton, 1273 Washington boulevard, Chicago. Police say he has a long record as a burglar and safe blower.

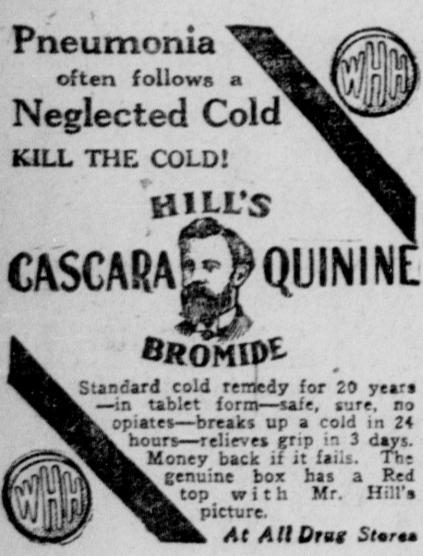

Search was begun for two men who were supposed to have been accomplices, but Stratton said he "worked" alone. Police are convinced the men who were believed to have come to his assistance were depositors fleeing from the bullets.

Constant M. Bird, president of the bank, was one of those who helped foil the robber. He left his office in the rear of the building, revolver in hand, to re-enforce the employees.

Stratton entered the bank and walked casually up to the cage of David Sands, paying teller. When he reached the window he drew a revolver and demanded $5,000 in bills. Sands dropped under the counter and reached for his revolver. As the teller's head disappeared the robber opened fire. Re-enforcements were not lacking, however, as all employees of the bank had been trained for years in what to do in case an attack were made by robbers.

Stratton was seized by a traffic policeman as he ran out of the building.

X. H. S. NOTES

The regular chapel assembly was called Wednesday and opened with the singing of "Weeping Willow Lane," led by Miss Haynes. Mr. Penndry then introduced Dr. Austin Patterson, who took as his subject "A Thousand American Jokes." He said that when he was kept in his bed by illness one time he had made a collection of jokes from one hundred and thirty-five leading periodicals. He said that the joke is the smallest package of humor.

The speaker then analyzed a joke and said that it was divided into three parts, the subject, humorous device and exaggeration. A joke however, does not need to have all three parts.

The classification of the jokes in the collection was next given by Dr. Patterson. Of the thousand, seventy-eight were pertaining to love, courtship, or marriage, one hundred and five of home life, one hundred and thirty-three doings of children, 188 to occupation, 147 traits, 142 that the students have had the community life, and the remainder miscellaneous.

The talk was different from any pleasure of hearing and they enjoyed it very much, especially as Dr. Patterson used numerous examples to bring out his point and which served to keep his listeners on the alert.

Miss Coffin and Miss McBane are both on the sick list this week, suffering from the grip. Miss Coffin has a severe case and Miss McBane's though milder is enough to prevent her assuming her duties. Mr. Watson of the seminary has been substituting this week.

GERMAN PROPAGANDISTS USE AMERICAN APPARATUS

Boston, Jan. 17.—"Children who are not working up to their level best are generally better grade, mentally," declared Dr. R. Pinter of Ohio State University, addressing the joint meeting of the American Association of Clinical Psychologists and the American Association.

German psychologists are not the most original in the world, for photographs, and literature just received by Dr. H. G. Langfield of Harvard and exhibited before the session showed that much of the apparatus used by the Germans in psychological army tests was merely a reproduction of American apparatus.

Chinese Taught Courtesy.

BETTER HEALTH CONDITIONS IN XENIA REVEALED

ANNUAL REPORT OF HEALTH OFFICER SHOWS IMPROVEMENT IN COMMUNITY

Interesting health facts are disclosed in the report of the city health department for the year 1919, which has just been submitted to City Manager Kenyon Riddle, by Health Officer Dr. R. H. Grube.

The fact that there was no influenza epidemic in 1919 as there was in 1918, greatly cut down the number of deaths over the previous year. It is also interesting that there were no epidemics whatever and no deaths from contagious diseases.

The death figures, according to Dr. Grube, give an interesting insight into the growth of Xenia. The fact that in 1911 there were only 143 deaths, as compared to 162 in 1919, shows that the city has grown in that time, as the death figures are normal for both years.

There were just two more deaths than births in 1919, there being only 160 births compared with 162 deaths. It is interesting, also, that four deaths were due to automobile accidents and four were due to burns. The complete report as submitted to the manager, is as follows:

Xenia, O., January, 1920.

Mr. Kenyon Riddle, City Manager.

Dear sir:

I herewith present my annual report as Health Officer:

Health conditions in Xenia during 1919 were unusually good. The influenza epidemic of 1918 had about run its course and there were only 2 deaths from this cause, where there were 28 in 1918. There was no epidemic of any kind during the year, except a mild one of whooping cough in the later months. No cases of small-pox, scarlet fever, diphtheria or measles were reported to the health department. There were few cases of typhoid fever scattered through the year, but they were not traceable to any common source.

The occurred in the city, 162 deaths as compared to 206 in 1918. Of these 82 were males and 80 females; 111 white and 51 colored. The principal causes of death were as follows: Bright's disease 24, Heart disease 20, Pneumonia 18, Azoospermia 13, cancer 15, consumption 11, automobile accidents 4, burns 4.

There was reported in the city 160 births. Of these 128 were white and 32 colored, 80 boys and 80 girls.

Several inspections of the sewage disposal plant were made during the year and it was found to be operating in a highly efficient manner. As the new sanitary sewers are to be installed during the coming year in connection with the new street paving, it is hoped that everybody along these lines will promptly make connections with these sewers and abandon all privies as required by both state laws and city ordinances, thus remedying what has long been an annoying nuisance in the city.

Much credit is due the physicians in the city for their hearty cooperation in handling the various health problems that have arisen during the year, and for their prompt and careful report on vital statistics of which the city charter makes the health officer the registrar.

A special effort will be made by the health department during the coming year to enforce the state and local laws governing the vending of milk and cream, to the end that Xenia people may be served at all times with clean and wholesome milk.

Respectfully submitted,
R. H. Grube,
Health Officer.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN CINCINNATI OCCURS SATURDAY

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 17.—Three firemen are dead, one missing and 13 injured by falling walls as the result of a fire which started early this morning on the second floor of the five story Charles L. Newton tea and spice company building, Second street and Suspension bridge.

The dead firemen are Edwin J. Vahlung, 35; Adolph Schonecker, 38, and Ray Norris, 31.

Peter Sifert of Company 14, is missing.

A high wind carried the flames to an adjoining building.

The firemen who were buried under a wall that fell were standing on the north end of the Suspension Bridge.

The Newton building was destroyed. It was 3:30 before the fire was under control. The loss on building and contents is estimated at $80,000.

BEAVERCREEK LOSES TO BELLBROOK TEAM

Beavercreek High School first team was defeated by Bellbrook in a double header basketball offering at Alpha Friday night, the score being 28-24.

The game, as the score would indicate, was fast and exciting and some good basketball was uncovered. The Beavercreek school seconds redeemed the showing of their school by defeating the Bellbrook seconds by the score of 14-11.

The Beavercreek Cadets, which outfit played Stivers High School second team at Dayton Friday night, were defeated by the lone margin of one point, in a furiously fought tussle. DETERMINATION OF QUALITY OF MILK URGED

DOCTORS TELL HOW TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER MILK IS PURE.

SPARTACISTS RAID GERMAN ARSENAL

In co-operation with the campaign being actively conducted here for pure milk for Xenia consumers, those in charge of the drive are issuing instructions to consumers to aid in determining the quality of the milk they use.

The campaign is being fostered by Dr. R. R. McClelland, Health Officer Dr. R. H. Grube and a committee consisting of City Manager Riddle, County Agent Ford S. Priore, P. H. Flynn and others.

As part of the campaign consumers are urged to satisfy themselves that their milk is pure by holding the bottle up and looking for sediment, by pouring the milk through a strainer on which is laid a layer of pure white cotton to catch any sediment, by tasting and smelling it, by having it tested for butter fat at any creamery station, by taking an unopened bottle to the City Health Officer to find out how many bacteria are present by visiting the dairy retailers and pasteurizer's plants and by visiting the dairy that supplies them to examine cows for health and cleanliness, bars for cleanliness, pails, strainers, cans and other utensils, and methods of milking, cooling and bottling.

The committee explains that milk produced by healthy cows, under sanitary surroundings, by cleanly people in clean utensils kept cool, pasteurized properly and delivered as soon as possible after milking is the cheapest food and safe for babies.

The movement is endorsed by the City Commission and administration, the City Health Officer, Chamber of Commerce, Social Service League, Red Cross and the physicians of Xenia. It is stated that milk producers and dealers and the City Health Officer will be glad to help to get the facts regarding any source of milk.

Charged with contributing to the delinquency of his 16 year old sister, Otto Hockett, aged 27, was arrested in Peru, Ind., and returned to Xenia Friday by Probate court officer, J. E. Watts.

Upon application of Prosecutor Harry D. Smith, the case against Hockett in probate court was dismissed Saturday morning, and a charge of immoral relations with his sister, was placed against the man in the court of Magistrate J. E. Jones. He entered a plea of not guilty, and his preliminary hearing was set for January 21. He was remanded to jail by Justice Jones in default of $500 bond.

The offense Hockett is charged with committing took place last summer. His arrest was the result of the girl's story as she told it to her mother, and to Judge J. C. Marshall. She lives with her mother near the corporation line east of the city.

Hockett was arrested as he was about to enter the home of a married sister at Peru, Ind., with whom he has been staying. Officer Watts who was sent after Hockett, stopped at Indianapolis and secured requisition papers from the governor of Indiana. In Peru he secured the co-operation of the nolice, and the house where Hockett was staying was surrounded by officers until he arrived. He denies the story told by his sister.

The crime with which Hockett is charged carries a life sentence in the penitentiary.

DOCTORS TELL HOW TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER MILK IS PURE.

In coordination with the campaign being actively conducted here for pure milk for Xenia consumers, those in charge of the drive are issuing instructions to consumers to aid in determining the quality of the milk they use.

The campaign is being fostered by Dr. R. R. McClelland, Health Officer, Dr. R. H. Grube and a committee consisting of City Manager Riddle, County Agent Ford S. Prince, P. H. Flynn and others.

As part of the campaign consumers are urged to satisfy themselves that their milk is pure, by holding the bottle up and looking for sediment, on which is laid a layer of pure white cotton to catch any sediment, by tasting and smelling it, by having it tested for butter fat at any creamery station, by taking an unopened bottle to the City Health Officer to find out how many bacteria are present by visiting the dairy retailers and pasteurizer's plants and by visiting the dairy that supplies them to examine cows for health and cleanliness, barn for clean lines, pails, strainers, cans and other utensils, and methods of milking, cooling and bottling.

The committee explains that milk produced by healthy cows, under sanitary surroundings, by cleanly people, in clean utensils, kept cool, pasteurized properly and delivered as soon as possible after milking is the cheapest food and safe for babies.
